Appendix 2f: Voucher Specimens from Protected Areas

This appendix gives an overview of the African IUCN protected areas for which voucher specimens are available.

In subappendix "1" the specimens are sorted by country, protected area and taxon. For each of the protected areas, the following additional information is given: IUCN category, date on which the area was established, and the area it encompasses (in hectares). For each of the taxa, a list of museum acronyms is given, indicating the museum where the voucher specimens are stored. The acronym colour refers to the most recent collection date of the material for that specific taxon and protected area in that museum.
BLACK: no information
GREEN: less than 20 years
BLUE: between 20 and 50 years
ORANGE: between 50 and 100 years
RED: more than 100 years ago.

In subappendix "2" the specimens are sorted by taxon, country and protected area. The museum acronyms behind the protected area name refer to the museums where voucher specimens are available. The colour coding of these acronyms is the same as in the previous subappendix.

Subappendices "3" and "4" give an overview of the number of specimens covered in this report with an indication of the numbers collected in protected areas (In PA) or outside protected areas (Out PA). These data are given as absolute numbers and as percentages of the total number (All) for that taxon. The higher hierarchical level covers all specimens included in its subordinate levels, e.g. the numbers for Epomophorus cover E. angolensis, E. anselli, E. gambianus, E. grandis, E. labiatus, E. minimus, and E. wahlbergi, as well as specimens identified to the genus level only (as covered in the 2018 report). Furthermore,E. gambianus includes the specimens identified as E. gambianus and E. gambianus crypturus.
In subappendix "3" all of the specimens covered in this report are included, whereas in subappendix "4" only recently collected specimens are included, with recently being defined as in the last 20 years.

Subappendices "5" and "6" are similar to the two previous ones, but instead of specimens, the number of different localities is counted for each taxon. The higher hierarchical level again covers all of the entries for the subordinate levels, but localities in which more than one of the subordinate taxa (or the taxon itself) occur, are only counted once.

The names of the taxa for subappendices "3" through "6" are colour coded as follows:
GREEN: at least 95 % of the specimens/localities is from within a protected area
BLUE: between 75 and 94.99 % of the specimens/localities is from within a protected area
BLACK: between 25.01 and 74.99 % of the specimens/localities is from within a protected area
ORANGE: between 0.01 and 25 % of the specimens/localities is from within a protected area
RED: 0 % of the specimens/localities is from within a protected area.

Appendix 2h: Species Richness Maps per Country

Species richness has been calculated for each country at a quarter degree gird size.

Key to country species richness (number of species recorded in a quarter degree grid):

Lime green: 1 – 3 species
Green: 4 – 15 species
Yellow: 16 – 35 species
Orange: 36 – 47 species
Red: 48 – 56 species

Appendix 2i: Distribution per quarter degree

This appendix gives an overview of the voucher specimens included in our database for each square quarter degree.
The data are ordered from per square degree from left to right and from top to bottom (so from the NW corner of Africa to the SE corner). Within each square degree, the records are ordered from left to right and from top to bottom (grouped per 15' square). Within each quarter degree square, the records are further ordered by taxon, museum acronym and number. The museum numbers are colour coded to reflect the number of years ago the specimen was collected:
BLACK: no information
GREEN: less than 20 years
BLUE: between 20 and 50 years
ORANGE: between 50 and 100 years
RED: more than 100 years ago.

The quarter degree notation of coordinates is frequently used in publications on southern African mammals (e.g. Smithers, 1971; Rautenbach, 1982; Herselman and Norton, 1985) and has the form "NNMMXy" (or "NN MM X y"), where "NN" is the number of degrees South, "MM" the number of degrees East, "X" an indication for the half degree square in the one degree square, and "y" an indication for the quarter degree square in the half degree square. The "X" is generally an uppercase letter A through D, and the "y" can be an uppercase or a lowercase letter a through d (although some publications use the numbers 1 through 4 for "y").

The notation has one major drawback, as it doesn't allow for coding localities outside the South-East quadrant of the globe. Therefore, the coding has been modified into "AA NNMMMXy", where "AA" represents the quadrant (either NW, NE, SW, SE), "NN" represents the number of degrees North or South (depending on the quadrant code), "MMM" represents to number of degrees West or East (again depending on the quadrant code), but expanded to three digits, to accomodate degrees higher than 99. Although all African localities have longitudes less than 100, the extra digit was added to accomodate localities from other continents (if needed). "X" and "y" still represent the half and quarter degree squares, and are coded by respectively uppercase and lowercase letters A, B, C, or D.
For details on these squares, see the drawing below.
